

Write an ALP that takes in a single user key input (you can assume that user will enter only values between 1 and 9) and displays as many '$' as the numeric value entered by the user. The key that the user presses must not be displayed onscreen.

For e.g. if user enters 4 then $$$$ must be displayed on screen.